

A woman in traditional Peruvian attire stands next to a llama against a stone wall. She is wearing a colorful, patterned shawl (huaco) over a vibrant, multi-layered skirt with intricate floral and geometric designs. She also wears a matching patterned hat with a yellow tassel. The llama is white with a brown body and a colorful beaded collar. The background is a wall made of large, irregular stones, with a section of yellow plaster above. The overall scene is set in a traditional Peruvian town.
