We recognize that the environmental and social impact of these business operations must be managed with great care. That is why all Belmond brand operations are covered by the scope of this policy, including sourcing ingredients and beverages, textiles and furnishings, and guest experiences at the resort itself (e.g., spas). This policy does not cover experiences and excursions that take place outside the hotel or the manner guests arrive or depart from our properties. We are committed to involving guests in our journey and sustainability efforts. We invite you to discover the new rhythm of travel while enjoying your time, interacting with the local culture and connecting with nature and the people around you.

Our committed approach to sustainable tourism is based on three pillars:

1. GASTRONOMY

Our ambition is to reduce our impact on food and beverage value chains while encouraging positive changes in the culinary ecosystem.

WE COMMIT TO:

- focus on sourcing local products with better traceability and increase vegetarian/vegan options;
- design our rations to minimise food waste and close the cycle through composting;
- partnering with suppliers and farmers who source ingredients responsibly¹ and minimize the use of plastics;
- Champion best practices for energy, waste and water management in our kitchens.

2. HABITAT

Our ambition is to reduce our dependence on resources while protecting and enriching the natural habitat around us.

WE COMMIT TO:

- improve energy efficiency;
- obtaining energy from renewable sources;

We are committed to raising awareness among our teams, suppliers and business partners about our sustainability initiatives. We will engage them in practical training sessions and send them relevant newsletters regularly, ensuring that they understand and respect our commitments and values. While this policy does not cover how guests arrive and depart from our destinations or excursions and experiences outside of the property in question, we will encourage on-site activations to engage guests with our journey and sustainability efforts.

We diligently adhere to general global guidelines to ensure consistency and alignment with our sustainability goals. At the same time, we recognize the unique challenges and opportunities that present themselves at Lima-Perú. Therefore, we develop our own action plans and roadmaps tailored to our specific contexts. This approach allows us to implement effective and innovative solutions that contribute to our collective mission of sustainability.
