PANTALEONE SUITE - GROUND FLOOR

The Pantaleone suite is undoubtedly an authentic celebration of Ravello hospitality. Pantaleone Caruso, a brilliant forerunner of the local hotellerie, anticipated a congenial ability that would later characterise the entire Amalfi Coast in the following years.

Elegance, refinement, the beauty of the landscape framing the intimate core of the suite, refined but not sophisticated, and a preciousness made up of details carefully assembled to create a true period portrait.

All around, the terraces of Ravello and the confluence of sky and sea. A perfect watercolour in which the white of the structure stands out against the lush green of the gardens that recall other gardens and a history of rows, bunches and vines from which everything began.

EMILIA SUITE - FIRST FLOOR

A tribute to the femininity of the Coast that is expressed in the sinuous lines of the landscape, in the uber-rich vineyards and lemon groves poised on the terraces and, of course, in the luminous hospitality of the Emilia suite.

Emilia Cicalese, wife of Pantaleone Caruso, is a companion of his entrepreneurial genius and a tradition of land, memory and intuition. Her name harks back to other gardens, similar in beauty and composition; her father was in fact Luigi Cicalese, the well-known gardener of Villa Rufolo, implementer of Sir Francis Nevil Reid's revolutionary patronage.

Behind her strong figure as a woman, mother and entrepreneur, lies an entire generation that changed the face of Ravello and the entire Amalfi Coast, opening up the enchantment of the property, subtly hinted at in a guesthouse of just a few rooms, to the creativity and inspiration that arrives from halfway across Europe or even overseas.

The Costiera is woman, and so is the Caruso property: the cuisine and gastronomy bear the mark of the same femininity. Just as the suite, where the furnishings and charming details induce thought and creation, echoes inside, in a play of echoes and legends, the extraordinariness of a landscape that is generous, welcoming, delicate and strong at the same time. As only women know how to be.
